1. I'd love it if there was some park space in town. A lot of kids don't love shopping – it can be boring. IF there was somewhere good to play instead of just shop maybe we'd like going into town more. A park can be made from recycled materials like in the pictures – this would be awesome. I once went to a park in Oxford where there are water sprinklers – can we have these in Leeds?
2. More free events in Millennium Square and St Peter's Square or the Waterfront – like the beach you do in August. A den making event. Story telling festival
3. More fun stuff in the market – there's space but not much to do there. More dance shows, maybe a skate park. Sessions from the Works – they help kids learn to ride bikes or skateboards.
4. More festivals like Rhythms of the city. The best thing ever were the family Sundays at the dark arches where you had great live music, food and performances down by the canal. The Waterfront Festival is amazing – stuff like where families can easily afford to come.

A pay as you feel café space like the one at Hovingham Avenue – somewhere really light and relaxing to go with kids that isn't commercialised. Somewhere with outdoor space
